Jail for cop who cuddled woman

A former New York City police officer who was acquitted of rape charges but found guilty of official misconduct — he admitted he cuddled with a naked, drunken woman who had called him and his partner for help — was sentenced to one year in prison yesterday. He's out on bail for now, but law enforcement experts warn he better be careful when he enters Rikers. {page 02}

Maid hits Strauss-Kahn with civil suit

The maid accusing former IMF chief Dominique Strauss-Kahn of sexual assault filed a civil lawsuit against him yesterday.

The lawsuit, which follows criminal charges against the Frenchman, repeats the version of events that the woman who accused him has told.

"Believing he was immune from the laws of this country, defendant Strauss-Kahn intentionally, brutally and violently sexually assaulted her and in the process humiliated, degraded, violated and robbed her of her dignity as a woman," according to the complaint, which does not seek specific damages.

Lawyers for Strauss-Kahn, 62, said that the civil suit shows his accuser is motivated by money.

The maid says she will give evidence that Strauss-Kahn harassed and assaulted other women in the past.

The assault "left her life and her young daughter's life in shambles," the suit reads. It alleges physical, emotional and psychological injuries and seeks compensatory and punitive damages, along with attorneys' fees. REUTERS

Ex-cop faces tough reception in lockup

Kenneth Moreno acquitted for rape but sentenced to one year in jail for official misconduct ◐ Admitted to cuddling with drunk woman in her bed

Disgraced ex-NYPD officer Kenneth Moreno received a brutal tongue-lashing from a Manhattan Supreme Court judge yesterday when he was sentenced to one year in jail — and he'll face an even tougher crowd when he arrives at Rikers.

Moreno, acquitted of raping a woman who called him for help, was hit with a surprise one-year jail term yesterday for misconduct charges stemming from his return to the woman's apartment while on duty.

He was freed late yesterday afternoon on a $125,000-bail pending an appeal of his sentence.

His high-powered defense attorney Joe Tacopina begged the judge for last-minute leniency.

"Certainly everyone knows the potential dangers that befall a police officer in the criminal justice system," pleaded Tacopina.

But Judge Gregory Carro would hear none of it.

"You've undermined the role of other police officers who have to do a tough job in this city," said Carro to Moreno.

It's no secret cops are indeed targeted in jail, former NYPD officer Mike Codella said.

"The minute you're in the joint everybody knows that there's a cop in there," he said. To other prisoners, attacking a police officer is "kind of like a feather in your cap."

Even though Moreno would be under protective custody in jail — taking his meals and outdoor time at separate times than the other prisoners — he's still not safe, said Codella.

"You still bump into (other prisoners) and they still see you," he said.

And because Moreno was accused of rape, jail will be "doubly dangerous," said Richard Lichten, a former Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department officer and a jail violence expert.

"It's one thing going to jail as a former police officer," Lichten said.

"But inmates in jail do not like other inmates who are in there for crimes against women."

EMILY ANNE EPSTEIN/METRO

▶ A Manhattan Supreme Court judge dismissed the notion that Kenneth Moreno, center, didn't know what he was doing. He's a "simpleton like a fox," said Judge Gregory Carro.

Mata's turn

Moreno's partner, Franklin Mata, also found guilty of official misconduct, will be sentenced tomorrow.

Harsher sentence for cops

Carro deemed that Moreno's status as a former police officer actually warranted a tougher sentence. "Your attorney said you should be treated like any other defendant, but the law treats police officers differently because of their role. Crimes against police officers are treated more severely than crimes against civilians," he said. "If you kill a police officer, it's murder one. If you kill Joe Smith, it's murder two." METRO/AB

Guards won't be watching

Moreno can't even expect jail guards to watch out for him, warned Codella. "Most people are under the impression these guys are guilty. The corrections officers are not going to treat them especially nice," he said. "They're not going to go out of their way to do them any favors." Moreno was kicked off the force after his conviction. Snakes vanish in hunt for LI serial killer

GILGO BEACH. Dozens of eastern hognose snakes typically found in the area around Gilgo Beach, Long Island — the dumping ground for 10 sets of human remains — have vanished. Concerned wildlife scientists worry the non-venomous snakes were either killed or scared off by the hundreds of police officers, rescue workers, canine units, horses and helicopters combing the area for more human bodies.

JFK crime spike

Criminals are crawling all over John F. Kennedy airport, causing a 30 percent uptick in larcenies this year.

The New York Post reports that there have been 299 complaints so far this year, dozens more than during the same time period in 2010.

Only 28 of the complaints have lead to an arrest, which means just 9 percent of reported thefts from baggage claims and by baggage handlers are pursued.

"The bosses are constantly telling us to downgrade grand larcenies to petit larcenies when a stolen item is more than a year old," a source said to the Post. "They want us to take into account depreciation."

If thefts are classified as petit larcenies rather than grand larcenies, they need not be reported to the FBI.

Still, some may say that the disparity between this year and the last is a result of more honest reporting of the crimes.

Last year, Port Authority managers were lambasted for misreporting larcenies as "lost property" cases.

More than 775 "lost property" reports were filed in the first half of 2010 and there were only 518 "lost property" cases filed during the first half of 2011, numbers that could make up for the difference between larceny reports year to year.

With two dead, safety overhaul asked of race

- Second person dies after participating in triathlon
- Official asks: Why have the race in hottest month?

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Triathlon participants swim 1.5 kilometers in the Hudson River, then bike 40 kilometers along the West Side Highway and run 10 kilometers through Central Park.

A second person died yesterday morning after participating in the Nautica New York City Triathlon, prompting at least one city official to demand a safety overview of the grueling athletic event.

A 40-year-old Illinois woman was pulled out of the Hudson River during the swimming portion of the race Sunday. It is believed she went into cardiac arrest twice, during and after the 1.5 kilometer swim.

"New Yorkers signed up for a triathlon — not a game of Russian roulette."
MANHATTAN BOROUGH PRESIDENT SCOTT STRINGER

She was hospitalized and died yesterday morning.

Her death comes after a 64-year-old man died Sunday, also during the swim. Michael Kudryk, of Freehold, N.J., was pulled out of the Hudson River unconscious and is thought to have died from a heart attack.

"This is horrifying," said Manhattan Borough President Scott Stringer when news of the second fatality broke. "We can't ignore this."

Stringer is demanding race organizers do a "top-to-bottom" review of the competition's safety protocol.

He also questioned the decision to go ahead with Sunday's race despite the muggy conditions.

"The heat may have contributed to this," said Stringer. "We need to review whether this triathlon is taking place in the appropriate month. Would it be smart to move it to the spring or the fall?"

But Triathlon director Bill Burke said the triathlons are usually held in the summer because that's when Hudson River currents flow with — not against — the swimmers. That's also when the river is warmest.

"It starts in the early morning during the coolest part of the day," said Burke, adding that when the race started, both the air and water temperatures were in the 70s. But Burke did not say he would do a nuts-to-bolts safety review.

Overcome:

- 26 other race participants needed assistance for minor injuries or pains during Sunday's swim, according to Stringer.
- During the 2010 race, with temps around 90 degrees, a London man collapsed near the finish line.
- A 32-year-old Buenos Aires man died in the race in 2008, when temperatures were above 90.

BoA sued for $10B

NEW YORK. Bank of America shares plunged 20.3 percent yesterday after it was hit with a $10 billion lawsuit that alleged a "massive" mortgage fraud.

The lawsuit, brought by American International Group Inc., raised worries about the growing size of potential losses from mortgage litigation against Bank of America. It also raised questions about the future of the bank's management. REUTERS

NEW STUDY SAYS WOMEN MUST EARN MORE DEGREES TO EARN THE SAME AS MEN

Explanation

- What happened? Credit rating agency Standard & Poor's lowered the U.S. government's credit rating. That affects long-term debt, which means government securities that have terms of more than one year.
- Why? S&P blamed political deadlock in Washington that threatens to keep the country from dealing effectively with its debt.
- What it means for markets and the economy: The fear is that the downgrade will add to building uncertainty in the stock market over Europe's debt crisis and evidence the U.S. economy is weakening. Rates on Treasury bonds also influence rates consumers pay on everything from mortgages to auto loans. A rise in Treasury rates would send those rates higher. MAINSTREET.COM

Dow falls more than 600 points

US market tanks in first day of trading since credit rating downgraded ● Plunging prices a sword over economy ● Obama tries to reassure country

Plunging stock prices in the wake of Standard & Poor's decision to strip the United States' top-tier AAA credit rating may threaten consumer confidence and could push the frail economy into recession.

While analysts say the direct impact on the economy from the credit rating downgrade itself is limited, a sustained drop in share prices would have a negative impact on wealth — and likely force both consumers and businesses to hunker down.

Consumer spending accounts for about 70 percent of U.S. economic activity and analysts at Albion Financial Group estimate the domestic stock market has dropped by about 14 percent since July 25, wiping off $1.93 trillion.

"This massive move in the equity market does dim the economic outlook for the next six months," said Carl Riccadonna, senior U.S. economist at Deutsche Bank in New York. "We would put the recession odds at about 40 percent, and about two weeks ago they were at about a 10 percent chance."

U.S. and global shares have come under relentless selling pressure since late July as investors took a dim view of a nasty fight in Washington over raising the country's debt ceiling and a string of weak economic data around the world.

Adding to the stock market's woes, S&P on Friday cut the long-term U.S. credit rating by one notch to AA-plus on concerns about the government's budget deficit and rising debt burden. Stocks on Wall Street tumbled more than 5 percent on Monday, their worst day since December 2008 during the worst of the banking crisis. REUTERS

Obama: We're still an AAA country

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Obama

President Barack Obama yesterday blamed a downgrade in the United States' credit rating on political gridlock in Washington and said he would offer some recommendations on how to reduce federal deficits.

Obama stopped short of sharp criticism of Standard & Poor's for its downgrade of U.S. debt to AA-plus from AAA on Friday. Senior administration officials have accused S&P of going ahead with the downgrade despite a $2 trillion mathematical error.

"Markets will rise and fall, but this is the United States of America. No matter what some agency may say, we have always been and always will be a triple-A country," Obama said.

Obama said in a White House appearance that he hopes S&P's downgrade of U.S. debt will give U.S. lawmakers a new sense of urgency to tackle long-term deficit spending and said he did not believe the reductions could be carried out with spending cuts alone. REUTERS

The Perfect Weekend Getaway

My best friends and I have almost nothing in common. I'm a total Type A adrenaline junkie. Katie is laid back and loves to be pampered. And Claire just wants to party all the time. But somehow all of our differences are what make us so great together. Except when it comes to taking a vacation.

Every year we've tried to find the perfect trip for all three of us, where I can be active and adventurous, Katie can work on her tan and Claire can dance till dawn. But somebody always ended up bored.

Just as we were about to give up, I found the vacation we were looking for in Club Getaway, a "Summer Camp for Grown-Ups". We called and made a reservation for the following weekend.

Katie, Claire and I met up in Manhattan the following Friday to hop on the 90-minute chartered bus ride to Club Getaway, in the Berkshire Mountains. Half of the people on the bus were Club Getaway regulars and the other half were newbies like us.

At Club Getaway I took lessons in rock climbing and the flying trapeze, went mountain biking and even learned to water ski. I won't lie and say I was the most graceful water skier you've ever seen, but I did manage to stay up after three tries – and having a cute Australian instructor didn't hurt either.

Club Getaway, a weekend sports and adventure resort, is located in the Berkshire Mountains of Kent, CT, just 90 minutes from NYC by car or Getaway Bus.

Katie spent most of her time just lounging by the lake with her new book and iPod. Although she did take her first-ever yoga class, along with cooking and wine-tasting classes. She says she was so inspired she might actually use her kitchen. We'll see.

Mention Metro when booking to receive a great saving

Claire loved that Club Getaway's "Boathouse" had none of what she hates about clubs in New York – a cover, overpriced drinks, or a snobby atmosphere. She was up dancing pretty late on Friday, but managed to wake up in time to hit the massive brunch buffet the next morning. Of course, she bragged that she worked off the three pancakes and omelet by staying active all day. And she actually met the guy she's now dating during the Saturday afternoon softball game.

Even though we often split up to do activities on our own, it was easy for us to meet up throughout the weekend to work in plenty of bonding time. We joined a hike together, met up for meals, danced at the Boathouse each night, and sat around the campfire regaling over the days' events.

I have to say it was perfect. We finally found what we were each looking for in a vacation. We're already checking out clubgetaway.com to plan our next adventure.

Club Getaway is the ideal mix of partying, activities, nature, fun and friends. The perfect weekend getaway.

CLUB GETAWAY FACTS

- Getaway Weekends include all meals, wine with dinner, all sports and activities, all nightly entertainment and lodging.
- Club Getaway is located in Kent, CT, 90 minutes from NYC by car or Getaway bus.
- Aug Weekends still available.
- Family Getaways also available in late August.

10 years on, your chance to respect the victims of 9/11

Metro launches website to mark 10th anniversary of a day of infamy Leave tributes to those who were lost

Metro today launches a new website, allowing readers to pay tribute to the victims of the 9/11 attacks.

The site, 911.metro.us, features breaking news and video on the 10th anniversary of the attacks on New York and the Pentagon.

And there's also a public tribute area where readers can remember those lost or who suffered on 9/11.

"We think it's important that our readers are able to remember those who died that day, or who are still suffering, from whatever cause, because of the 9/11 attacks.

"We'd also invite reflections from those who were not directly affected — 9/11 was one of the most important days in American history," said Tony Metcalf, editor-in-chief of Metro USA.

Comments, which will be actively moderated, can be entered by liking Metro on Facebook (www.facebook.com/MetroNewYork, /MetroBoston and /Metro Philly.)

A selection will be used in the week starting Sept. 6, when Metro's print titles, published in New York City, Boston and Philadelphia, will reflect on the 10th anniversary of 9/11. METRO

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

Why We Can Usually Pay More Than Other Dealers

Most jewelers and dealers specialize in few items and focus on newer looking items to resell. Because they are unfamiliar with many other items including vintage jewelry, old watches, coins, flatware, etc. they tend to offer very low prices because these items are not readily saleable for them. Our company has many specialized buyers for the various classifications of items that we purchase, therefore we can usually pay more.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

Why You Should Sell Now!

The Economy & Market Value
The recent downturn of our economy during the last three years has caused gold and other precious metal prices to soar to the highest levels of all time. This is the reason this is best time to sell before prices drop.

Get Cash Immediately
Our professional staff will provide you with a speedy evaluation and make all payments in cash.

No Charge
We do not charge for our consultations. Find out how much cash your unwanted items will put in your pocket. Many customers have been surprised and delighted by the amount of money they received.

Safe, Secure & Friendly
Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

Licensed, Bonded & Insured
We are licensed, bonded and insured in all cities and towns in which we conduct business.

Help the Environment
Using recycled precious metals for jewelry is an important way for jewelers to source precious metals more responsibly. Precious metals that have already been used in some way, including "vintage," "renewed," or "reclaimed" metals from jewelry and electronics, are not directly implicated in the destructive impacts of mining. They do not share responsibility for the impacts of mining in the same way that newly mined gold does.

Satisfied Customer Testimonials

Really like it here! Everyone is very kind, great atmosphere. I have been back 4 times!

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

The feed ...

▶ Checking in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

Today, Zooey Deschanel is feeling inadequate, Alec Baldwin should know that some newspapers are free and Martha Plimpton is trying to enjoy our current economic woes.

I would totally dress up like @KatyPerry but I think she looks WAY better in a cupcake bra than I do.

▶ @AlecBaldwin
Buy and read a newspaper every day. In print or online, there is information in newspapers you will never get from other media.

▶ @MarthaPlimpton
I'm so excited we're getting our own Depression. I always felt jealous of my Granny and all her "Back in the Depression..." stories.

Zooey Deschanel

The 'Goodies' on Ciara's 'Fantasy Ride'r

Riders, contracts on what kind of amenities are to be provided for celebrities in order to perform at a certain venue, are nothing new in showbiz (check out our sidebar on the most outrageous celebrity riders below). But Ciara, who is now on tour, claims her rider is "very simple."

"I love green tea or throat coat or peppermint tea. Fiji water is a must. I like raw almonds in my rider as well, really just to keep it simple because before I go on stage I don't like to eat too heavy. I have a toothbrush on there and toothpaste and Dove soap," she told Metro on the red carpet at a concert at New York City's Beekman's Beach Club, where she performed as part of the Radio Maliboom Boom Station Invasion Tour. "Maybe when I go on my world tour next time around, I might beef it up. But normally it's about the catering for me. The rider in the room doesn't really matter as much as the catering. The good food is where it's at." — Additional reporting by Meredith Engel.

Aniston actually happy?

▶ Aniston

After years of agonizing reports about her love life, it seems like Jennifer Aniston has finally found happiness (for now!). The actress and her new boyfriend Justin Theroux are living it up in Hawaii leading up to Theroux's 40th birthday tomorrow, according to Us Weekly. The couple arrived last week and have spent their time shopping, going on lunchtime retreats and attending a party at Ben Stiller and wife Christine Taylor's vacation home. "When they left the store, Jennifer was massaging Justin's shoulders from behind, and he turned around and said something that made her laugh hysterically," a source says of one of their shopping trips. "They seemed giddy in love and genuinely happy together."

Can it be? Can our decadelong national nightmare about Jennifer Aniston's love life be over? For the sake of gossip columnists everywhere, I can officially say: Let's hope not.

Talking points

Lopez isn't sitting around crying, OK?

While her split from Marc Anthony has been "painful," Jennifer Lopez is reportedly feeling good about her decision to end their marriage, according to People magazine. "She is very relieved to be out of [the marriage], frankly," says a source. "I don't think she is sitting around crying or wondering if she made the wrong decision." In fact, far from sitting down, she's off to Atlanta — twins in tow — to film her next project, "What to Expect When You're Expecting." "For her, it's back to business," the source says. "She is all about her career. She's excited to move on."

Cheryl Cole

The truth behind Cole

Simon Cowell is opening up about exactly how Cheryl Cole's involvement with the U.S. edition of "X Factor" fell apart. "After two cities, I offered her the job, which initially she accepted," Cowell says, according to Radar Online. "And then unfortunately when it went public, the negotiations fell apart, so I thought she would be more comfortable doing the U.K. show than the American show. For certain reasons, [she] decided not to." And while they have been friends for years, the latest episode might have a lasting impact: "She is still grumpy with me," he admits.

Rocking the doc

Morgan Spurlock on his five-part series about the best documentaries of all time ● Why the filmmaker wasn't smart enough to pick the films

▶ Part two of "50 Documentaries to See before You Die" airs tonight at 9 p.m. on Current TV.

Documentary filmmaker Morgan Spurlock puts his hosting hat on for "50 Documentaries to See before You Die," a Current TV series which premiered last week. Spurlock hits the road to examine the most interesting, influential and controversial non-fiction films in recent history. But first, he talked to Metro about how the 50 were chosen.

Did you have any input about which films were included on the show?

I had no say whatsoever. That was the whole thing, I got zero input. I was basically told, "We had real geniuses do this list, not you." So all I got to do was relay the information that much smarter people than me came up with.

Did you find yourself agreeing with what they picked?

Yeah. I think most people when they watch the special, there are going to be a lot of films that they agree with, there will be some films that, like me, they'll go, "How can that not be on the list? How can this film not be on the list?" But I think overall people are going to be really excited by it.

FOR THE COMPLETE PROFILE, VISIT WWW.METRO.US/TV

What were some of your favorite moments that we'll see?

For me, just traveling around and meeting some of these people that are kind of these film icons. You know, meeting the kids, who are now all grown up, from "Hoop Dreams." Meeting Mr. Brainwash — incredible. Meeting the young preacher from "Jesus Camp," who still lives in Missouri and is about to go to college. You know, to see these people in real life after you've seen them in films is pretty spectacular.

Do you see this as part of an effort to bring documentaries to more of a mainstream audience?

Yeah, I think that's one of the things that I was excited by about the show. I think this will continue that dialogue, an examination of docs, the impact they have, how important they are in our society.

3 Things to know about 'Deputy Butterbean'

Live from TCA press tour: Eric Esch, a 416-pound professional fighter, looks to knock out crime on Investigation Discovery's 'Big Law: Deputy Butterbean'

INVESTIGATION DISCOVERY

▶ Eric "Butterbean" Esch, left, and Deputy Adam Hadder star in "Big Law: Deputy Butterbean," premiering Aug. 9 at 10 p.m. on Investigation Discovery.

This isn't 'Steven Seagal: Lawman'

Esch, who goes by "Butterbean" or "Bean," was deputized about a year and a half before cameras came to Walker County, Ala., where he serves as a reserve deputy sheriff.

"I did this because it's my hometown," he says, insisting the law enforcement job isn't a reality TV stunt. "I live there," he explains. "I have kids that have to grow up. I have grandkids there. The reason I started helping Adam [Hadder, Butterbean's best friend and partner on the force] in the drug unit is because I want to make it a better place, get rid of a lot of the drugs. If I can make a little bit of change in the town that I live in, OK."

He may be a former super heavyweight boxing champion, but he doesn't want to fight you

"I'm a levelheaded guy," says Butterbean. "The fighters that have problems [with people wanting to pick fights] are the ones with the big egos. I mean, I use my brain. Your brain is what controls everything. You can talk to people like they're human beings and don't try to bully them around. Sometimes you have to use force. But use logic with them, then they work pretty well."

But he is actually fighting crime

When asked about the most dangerous situation he had gotten into, Butterbean cited house entries.

"Being a vice and narcotics unit, we do a lot of search warrants [and] high-risk entries. And, of course, that's always pretty dangerous," says Deputy Hadder. "We actually got in a car chase during an episode, and that's never that fun."

"The crazy thing," adds Butterbean, "is I wasn't afraid because I have a great team and they trained me well and I really had confidence in them. And hopefully they had enough confidence in me, which I'm sure they did or they wouldn't let me be there."

a novel
Austin Wright
"Marvelously written—the last thing you would expect in a story of blood and revenge. Beautiful."
—Saul Bellow
▶ Wright, pictured right, was an English professor at the University of Cincinnati and author of seven novels, all of which fell out of print. Eight years after his death, his masterpiece, "Tony and Susan," is being reissued to worldwide acclaim.

Rescued from the book graveyard

An author is receiving an unexpected second chance this summer after being out of print for nearly 20 years ◐ The rare story of 'Tony and Susan'

Austin Wright is having a year most authors can only dream of. Not only is his book, "Tony and Susan," a best-seller in Britain, but this week, a major U.S. publisher is publishing the work in the states with a printing of 10,000 copies in hardcover.

Too bad he's not around to witness it: Wright died in 2003 at the age of 80.

Here is the very odd backstory to "Tony and Susan": The thriller was first released in 1993 to a small publishing house. It garnered critical acclaim, but it failed to gain traction with readers. However, over in England, editor Ravi Mirchandani, who read the original manuscript two decades ago, just couldn't forget it. So he decided to investigate what happened to "Tony and Susan" and discovered the book was out of print. The staff at his publishing house loved it, they acquired the rights to it and went on to sell worldwide rights in 15 languages.

"I've never had this happen," says Jamie Raab, Publisher of Grand Central, who bought the rights for U.S. publication for its re-release. "I read the book and thought it was amazing. I wanted to be a part of introducing it to a much larger audience."

Raab knows the whole tale is bittersweet.

"Unfortunately, [Wright] is not around to appreciate it and to enjoy its success," says Raab. "But it's just a seamless book and works on so many levels. I just had to try to get it out there."

The plot

So why did all of these editors fawn over "Tony and Susan" enough to resurrect it? Because it's just so good.

Set up as a novel-within-a-novel, "Tony and Susan" follows Susan Morrow, a mild-mannered college teacher, as she reads a manuscript her ex-husband mails her, a chilling thriller of murder and revenge.

Writer? It's time to explore Book Country

Most how-to books on the creative process tell writers to stay far away from the time-suck that is the Internet. But Book Country, a new online platform, lets new writers get exposure, motivation and, most importantly, feedback.

Focused on the genres of romance, fantasy, science fiction, thriller and mystery, members can upload a work in progress, explore and provide notes about work already posted, and participate in discussions about the business and craft of writing.

"Traditionally, a writer has to have a full manuscript before reviews are possible. With Book Country, he just has to upload a few chapters and he will be able to get feedback on his work," says Molly Barton, president of the site. "It makes the whole process less intimidating."

Book Country also focuses on reciprocity. Members are allowed to upload work only after they've provided reviews for three other works.

"All the reviews are moderated. And reviews by established members will weigh more than reviews by newer members," Barton says. "This way, a writer cannot ask his friends to give his own work a raving review. This maintains the integrity of our website."

Putting on a class act

Tyne Daly and Maria Callas are a masterful pairing in Terrence McNally's play about an acclaimed operatic soprano's time teaching at Juilliard

Following its successful engagement with "Good People," Manhattan Theatre Club's latest production, "Master Class," took the stage at the Samuel J. Friedman Theater on July 7. Terrence McNally's two-act play imagines one of the sessions taught by acclaimed operatic soprano Maria Callas at Juilliard in the 1970s — although this show is not based on a literal recount of those seminars.

If you go

Through Sept. 4

Instead, Tony- and Emmy-winner Tyne Daly brilliantly embodies a fictional interpretation of the world-renowned songstress at the cusp of her career. She regally lectures the audience, speaking to them directly as if they're the aspiring singers in attendance who are eagerly begging for insight into Callas' success and indefinable essence.

Breaking the fourth wall from her first words, Daly wraps theatergoers around her finger and never lets them go — despite a tendency to insult and berate as she dares them to take major risks if they even dream of approaching her levels of fortune and fame.

The structure of the play is divided between three students who perform pieces for Callas to critique. Each actor performs stirring renditions of classic operatic works — often taking the audience out of the story for a few minutes to simply sit enthralled at the beauty of each voice — until Callas inevitably interrupts with insecurity-inspired criticism and self-aggrandizing anecdotes.

Other characters include an infatuated accompanist (Jeremy Cohen) and a handyman (Clinton Brandhagen), who respectively bolster and undercut Callas' lofty projections of self-worth to summarize her internal struggle for validation. Director Stephen Wadsworth makes the most of simplicity onstage, with the busiest elements being the mere removal of set pieces as Callas disappears into memories of her glory days with La Scala and lover Aristotle Onassis.

"Master Class" is a riveting work that teaches not only performance, but the psychology of stardom; whether you're previously a fan of Maria Callas or not, it's worth attending to witness Daly at her best.

Cool X3

MM6 Maison Martin Margiela's capsule collection with hip retailer Opening Ceremony finally hit stores We talk to the creative powers behind the coveted line

The collection, which ranges in price from $175-$1,420, is available at at Maison Martin Margiela (803 Greenwich St.), Opening Ceremony (35 Howard St.), Barneys (660 Madison Ave.), www.maisonmartinmargiela.com and www.openingceremony.us.

Last Fashion Week, editors raised their prosecco glasses at the news of a collaboration between Opening Ceremony, purveyors of downtown cool, and MM6 Maison Martin Margiela, the sister brand to the main label created by enigmatic fashion rock star Martin Margiela. The collection, which hit stores last week, is completely in line with Maison's heady design philosophy, including the "idea of recuperation, transformation and reinterpretation."

Translation: The line consists of 20 separates — with a twist. Based on a three-in-one concept, most items play double duty, expanding your wardrobe without adding more clutter. Unfasten the lining of a jacket and you have another; with a slight tug, boots can be worn as knee-highs or ankle.

We sat down with Humberto Leon, co-founder of Opening Ceremony, and Renzo Rosso, president of Only the Brave (who in 2002 became a majority shareholder of Maison Martin Margiela) to find out how your new travel wardrobe came together.

Whose genius idea was it for this collaboration?

Leon: "I approached them saying I wanted to work on something with the Maison. We do this thing where we feature countries every year, and we decided to feature France. The Maison is based in Paris and it seemed like a perfect fit. I had talked to Renzo and he said to me, 'If we do this, let's do it really special.' In the end, I feel we did something really special. And it was a year in the making — we had really thought this through."

Rosso: "Me, I'm very passionate and I was in [Opening Ceremony], and I saw what they were doing and I said, 'Wow that's great.' It started with this guy."

Quoted

"There is something so special about having clothing that is so multipurpose."
HUMBERTO LEON

How exactly did the creative process work?

Rosso: "We give it to our designers, the input, of what we wanted to do, they came up with the design. After, we showed it to the Opening Ceremony people and they put their own vision. They said, 'This is not good, this can be fantastic.' It was really two teams working together and I think this is why the result is very unique."

Leon: "They came to us and said, 'What do you love about MM6?' and we gave them all the key points."

Q&A

Leon on collaborating

You've done a lot of collaborations. Has this been the most intense?

"With this one, the challenge that was so exciting for me was I wanted every piece to be as exciting as the next. And I wanted each piece to have value. In my mind, when I buy a Margiela piece that's what it means to me — it's the value of each garment. I think when you look at this collection, each piece has that value."

TO SEE THE ENTIRE COLLECTION, GO TO WWW.METRO.US/STYLE

Such as?

Leon: "I think this idea of transformation, this idea of the item being more than what it actually is. I think the Maison is always very intellectual, but in a very beautiful way. We wanted to celebrate all of those different points."

Rosso: "And we chose MM6 because the line is more open, more friendly, more unique and very wearable. We wanted to give MM6 visibility so it becomes more well known. With the 6 also we can [show] the wearability of Margiela with Opening Ceremony.

What are your favorite pieces?

Leon: "The outerwear is my favorite. It's so versatile. We are presenting it for the fall collection, but I think you can wear this all year. I think there is something so special about having clothing that is so multipurpose; I feel if you pack one piece, you could have four outfits. For traveling, that's amazing. It feels really modern."

Rosso: "The jacket is so beautiful, but the whole collection is terrific."

Is this a one-time romance or are you guys going to keep it going?

Leon: "I think this is the beginning of something."

Rosso: "Now that it's so beautiful, let's see."

Another debt crisis solution

Tax refunds and Social Security are taken from paychecks earned by workers. The real debt solution is balance: cuts with revenue. But the Tea Party applies "Taxed Enough Already" only to the richest 5 percent of the population, not the middle class, so we have cuts without revenue, and none for the rich. It's doubly unbalanced. I have two better ideas: 1) The Americans-First Tax: For every job Big Business outsources overseas (which is "unpatriotic"), tax them triple an American's salary plus all benefits. 2) The Giffords Tax: raise taxes on guns, bullets, clips, magazines, etc., but make gun safety devices and smart-gun technology tax-free.

J. ANDREW SMITH, BLOOMFIELD, NJ

S&P downgrade a wake-up call

There is good reason for Standard & Poors to downgrade Uncle Sam's credit rating. They have only said publicly what many have been thinking: that both the president and Congress on a bipartisan basis failed in dealing with our financial crisis. At the end of the day, we will increase our long term debt from $14 trillion to $16 trillion over the next two years. The president and Congress can only identify modest cuts in the billions. They punted by setting up another joint House/Senate congressional committee to come up with more cuts later. Significant real cuts in spending have been put off until 2016. The simple answer to the budget crises would have been a return to 2008 spending levels. This should have been followed by a one for one basis; cut a dollar in direct spending for every dollar you raise the debt ceiling. To add insult to injury, Congress has adjorned for the rest of August while the crisis continues.

LARRY PENNER, GREAT NECK, NY

Blame it on the reign

I can't conceive what voters were thinking last year when they elected the current crop of Republican freshmen to Congress, most of whom were spouting nonsense throughout the campaign season and proving ignorant of basic civics. Anyone who complains about "Washington" being broken can look to the Tea Party Republicans and their supporters, first and foremost. The sooner they're out of office, the better for the rest of us.

A small change to many familiar terms can lead to embarrassment while visiting a foreign restaurant
Here are the most misused ones

If you're traveling abroad, the restaurant experience can be decidedly tricky. Chris Warnasch, expert linguist and director of Living Language, is available to offer tips on some of the tricky foods and phrases that can lead you to an alternate meaning.

For more foreign language info, visit www.livinglanguage.com and check out the new Platinum courses available this week.

tips

Je suis pleine/ Je suis finis:

After the end of a delicious and rich French meal, you may be tempted to say, "I'm full" or "I'm finished." But je suis pleine ("I'm full") means "I'm pregnant" or "I'm very drunk" and je suis finis means "I'm finished," as in, "I'm dead" or "I'm done for"!

Peperoni/ pepperoni:

In Italy, a pizza ordered with "pepperoni" will not get you the usual pie with cured sausage slices like in the United States — in Italy, peperoni are small sweet bell peppers that are also delicious.

Nacht/nackt:

When in Germany or Austria, be careful of telling your waiter about your evening plans. Not pronouncing "nacht" with enough throaty oomph might make for an embarrassing situation — its close cousin, "nackt," means naked!

TIM GRAHAM/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Be careful what you say to French waitresses.

Embarazada:

If you do say something wrong and feel the need to express your embarrassment in Spanish, beware of the word "embarazada." It doesn't mean "embarrassed," but rather "pregnant." If you're embarrassed and want to say so, say "me da pena" or "me da verguenza."

Agnello/ anello:

Roasted lamb is a springtime tradition in Italy, but be careful when asking for this seasonal delicacy. Asking for anello (a-NEL-lo, "ring") rather than agnello (an-YEL-lo, "lamb") may get you directions to the nearest jewelry store rather than your dinner.

An island of your own

Don't miss this!

If you visit the island before the end of the month, you need to see artist Tom Deininger's display at the Gallery at Four India. This self-portrait does not do justice to the genius of this Rhode Island-based artist. See, this is not a painting. This is a carefully assembled three-dimensional hodge podge of baby dolls, sneakers, cassette tapes and discarded electronics. Amazing!

Nantucket may be packed with people all summer, but there are places you can go to get away

Though Nantucket swells to about five times its year-round population during the summer season, it is possible to find areas on the island that make it feel like you're the only one there. Or for a truly exclusive feeling, you could wait a few weeks for what the islanders call the "shoulder season," the very happy medium between the crowded peak and their desolate winters.

Stay

If you can get into one of the 12 rooms at the Union Street Inn, they can turn you into an island insider within a day. The innkeepers supply guests with self-guided walking tours and learned conversation that will make you feel like you're on a first-name basis with anyone who owns a local business. Plus, their rotating made-to-order breakfast menu demonstrates an understanding that running a truly exceptional bed and breakfast depends on paying attention to both B's.

Eat

While we're on the topic of delicious food, American Seasons is a comfortably funky eatery a few blocks away from the cobblestone hustle and bustle. Those in the know take the extra walk to delight in chef Michael LaScola's artistic menu choices. We can't recommend enough the Crispy Pork Belly and Seared Octopus on a bed of homemade kimchee. If you like their pig, you may want to go to the island on the second week in October for their Hogtoberfest. Another top choice for dining is Corazon del Mar with Mexican cuisine so authentic that it may finally dispel the myths of the island as a lily-white enclave.

See

Speaking of unexpected, the Nantucket Whaling Museum has taken what could have been an embarrassing relic of a cruel and outdated economic engine and turned it into an informative and entertaining experience. The island has come to terms with its whaling past and details it with multimedia presentations, weapon demonstrations and lively live narration about how before the island transitioned into tourism, it was for a brief time the center of the world. This is all done underneath a gigantic whale skeleton.

Experience

If there is any part of your journey to Nantucket that is a "how the other half live" exploration, then you need to do the 20-minute bluff walk in Siasconset. Stretching along the elbow of the island, the path literally takes you through the backyards of some of the most beautiful homes on the island, preceded by the quintessentially quaint Nantucket cottages on Front Street.

Luxury weekend of golf, relaxation

Easily accessible from all parts of the tri-state area, a weekend getaway to the Delamar Greenwich Harbor and golf at Pound Ridge Golf Club will please even those with the most discerning of taste.

The Delamar Greenwich Hotel features gorgeously appointed rooms and many include a nice balcony overlooking the water. Its L'escale restaurant offers a seaside dining experience with fresh seafood and ambiance that blends upscale and casual without a whiff of pretense.

Thanks to a partnership between the two properties, guests at Delamar Greenwich Harbor enjoy extensive concierge services with Pound Ridge Golf Club including complimentary golf club and shoe rentals, preferred golf rates, tee time booking via hotel staff and transportation options (from shuttles to rental cars and limousines).

IS IT THE END?

Posada benched, with no guarantee for a return to lineup Has the Core Four become the Core Two?

The final steps toward the end of Jorge Posada's career began during the offseason when he was told not to worry about catching anymore. The acceleration towards the finish line came Sunday in Boston when manager Joe Girardi said he was going to put the best lineup on the field.

"Joe told me today that he's going to put the best team on the field, and I'm not in the lineup as the DH," Posada told reporters. "I'm not happy about it, but I put myself in this situation, and all I can do is keep working and trying."

That means for the remaining 49 games, Posada is reduced to a spectator and occasional pinch hitter.

It was the second time this year that a subtle reminder of Posada's decline was delivered before a nationally televised game against the Red Sox.

Runs batted in for Jorge Posada since the All-Star Break (17 games). Teammate Curtis Granderson has 24 runs batted in over that same span.

The first came May 14, a Saturday night FOX game, when Posada refused to bat ninth for the first time in 12 years and took himself out of the lineup. Posada was hitting .165 and was hitless against lefties. A .382 average in June lifted him to .240 on the season and kept him in the lineup.

But over his last 26 games Posada is batting .205 (16-for-78) with four RBIs and three extra-base hits. Sunday the Yankees finally determined they had seen enough unproductive at-bats.

"We're going to see how this works," Girardi told reporters in Boston. "We're going to try some different things. We'll see how this works, and I told Jorge, 'You're still going to be a big part of this, and we're going to need you. We're just going to do some different things.'"

Until Alex Rodriguez returns from the DL, Eric Chavez will fill the role against right-handed pitching and Andruw Jones will be used against left-handed pitching. After Rodriguez returns, the spot could be used to give regulars a half day.

Sanchez: Our defense is just as good as '85 Bears squad

Jets quarterback Mark Sanchez is hoping to be doing his version of the "Super Bowl Shuffle" at the end of this season.

Yesterday morning after practice, Sanchez compared the Jets defense he faces every day in practice to the vaunted Bears unit from their 1985 Super Bowl team. That defense was put together by Buddy Ryan, the father of current Jets head coach Rex Ryan. It was a defense that was all offense for the Bears with Buddy Ryan's '46 defense' blitzing through any number of gaps and willing to take risks to get to the quarterback.

The 1985 Bears finished with the top-ranked defense in the league, ending the year with an emphatic 46-10 win over New England in the Super Bowl.

After two seasons under Rex Ryan, the Jets see big things from this defense as well.

"We have been in the same system and whenever you have that, you can take leaps and bounds," linebacker Bart Scott said. "It doesn't take too long to really get back in the groove of it."

ANDY LYONS/GETTY IMAGES

25 The Jets ranked 25th in the NFL in interceptions in 2010 despite starting Darrelle Revis and Antonio Cromartie.

The Jets return the majority of their starters and beefed up their pass rush in an effort to be more aggressive.

Murphy's season is done

The news was not as devastating as the Mets initially feared, but the end result is the same.

Daniel Murphy's season is over and Jose Reyes will not play for the next two weeks.

Murphy suffered a sprain of his left MCL and will miss the remainder of the season, while Reyes was placed on the 15-day DL with a strained left hamstring.

Both injuries occurred in Sunday's loss to the Braves. Reyes left the game in the bottom of the second after pulling up going into first trying to beat out an infield single the previous inning.

Murphy injured his knee when Jose Constanza slid into second. His year ends with a .318 average — fifth in the NL. He switched between first, second, third and left field, and there will be internal discussions regarding which position he is best suited for.

Terry Collins said outfield might have to be considered, but GM Sandy Alderson was unwilling to eliminate second base.

"I don't know if playing second base has any causal relationship to injuries," Alderson said. It is the second time in as many years Murphy has had a serious knee injury. He tore the MCL in his right knee during a minor league game last year.

"I know how this story ends," Murphy said. "This injury isn't as severe. I know I'll be back."

Ruben Tejada and Mike Baxter were promoted from Triple-A.
